Explanatory notes:

Consultant terms and conditions, single consultant, short version

General notes

1. This agreement

This agreement has been drawn to protect you as far as possible. It follows that it is tough on your counter party. However, that is relative. It follows that the agreement will contain provisions which you regard as too strong. We have drawn it that way because it is very easy for you to assess our words and decide what you should delete. [redacted].

2. What you should delete

How you want to use a document depends not only on your business philosophy but also on your commercial strength. You cannot bully a rich counter party into accepting the terms you want, nor can any of us prevent someone from issuing a claim in court. Because we give [redacted], [redacted].

We do not know who your clients are nor what their demands will be. We have given you a framework suitable for presentation to a client or customer. If you serve a small business clientele, you may wish to delete or "[redacted]" [redacted].

This agreement is drawn in general terms without specific reference to any industry. We suggest that you should give careful thought to [redacted] - [redacted].

We give thought to the question of who you are and we draw documents to support you. But we sometimes make provision for matters which your counter party will insist on. We are trying to make your life easy, not saddle you with arguments when you first start to negotiate. Other documents, particularly [redacted], [redacted].

A good rule to follow, for commercial provisions, is: "Do not delete if you do not understand the reason for inclusion", and for legal provisions: "Do not delete unless you understand the legal meaning and the reason for inclusion". In summary: "If in ■ ■ ■ ■ , ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ". ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ . ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■ ■

5.2. writing a short description of the assignment, either as part of the body of the document or [redacted] .

5.3. writing the specification into this document as a schedule - [redacted] .

5.4. attaching the specification to this agreement and cross referencing so as [redacted] .

Whichever alternative you choose will require edit of other parts of the [redacted] .

Paragraph specific notes:

Notes numbering refers to paragraph numbers.

1. Definitions

We know nothing about your business, so the defined terms we have provided may not be the best for your business. You may wish to [redacted] “ [redacted] ” [redacted] “ [redacted] ”. [redacted] , [redacted] , [redacted] .

You should first decide on the contents of the document, then return to check [redacted] .

2. Entire agreement

This paragraph prevents a party from later saying he was relying on some other document or web site or what was said. If other documents are to be relied on, [redacted] , [redacted] . [redacted] .

3. Consultant's status

This paragraph contains provision to protect the client, not the consultant. It may be freely edited. If you are the [redacted] , [redacted]
